

Holy cows (and goats and sheep)? Ritual uses of animal bodies in the past

MONDAY OCTOBER 23, 2017

PROGRAM

Venue: Engelska parken, building 6, room 0022

- 9.15-9.30 Introduction and welcome (Gunnel Ekroth & Bettina Stolle)
- 9.30-10.30 BETTINA STOLLE (Stockholm University): Back to the future: Assessing ritual behavior through animal bones at Helgö
- 10.30-10.50 Coffee
- 10.50-11.50 LAERKE RECHT (Cambridge University): Holy horse: The use of equids in burial and other rituals in the Bronze Age Near East
- 11.50-12.50 GUNNEL EKROTH (University of Uppsala): Dangerous dining? Depictions of meat and animal body parts of Attic red-figure vases
- 12.50-14.00 Lunch
- 14.00-15.00 ZOÉ PITZ (Université de Liège): Uses of sacrificial animals in Greek Ritual Norms
- 15.00-16.00 OLA MAGNELL (Lund University): Heads and hooves to the gods: Trunks and limbs to the people - body parts of horse in ritual contexts from Iron Age Scandinavia
- 16.00-16.20 Coffee
- 16.20-17.20 ANNE LANDBORG (University of Uppsala): Animal representations of gods in Egyptian ritual contexts - divine presence or ritual masking?
- 17.20-18.00 Concluding discussion

Organized by the Department of archaeology and ancient history in collaboration with the AGORA network

For more information, please contact Gunnel Ekroth (gunnel.ekroth@antiken.uu.se) or Bettina Stolle (bettina.stolle@ofl.su.se)

Background image: Holy Cow by Lorraine Bushek (www.lorrainebushek.com)