

Seminar:

Colonialism, Community Archaeology and Indigenous Rights in Japan and Sweden

Time: Tuesday 21 May, 09.15 – 12.00

Place: 2-2033 (Engelska Parken, Uppsala) and A30 (Visby)

Department of Archaeology and Ancient History, Uppsala University

Arranged by the Core-to-Core program “International research network for Indigenous studies and cultural diversity” (funded by the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science), and the Heritage & Society Research Cluster, Uppsala University

Program

09.15–09.25: Introduction

09.25–09.40: Carl-Gösta Ojala, Uppsala University: “Colonialism, Archaeology and Indigenous Rights in Sápmi”

09.40–10.00: Hirofumi Kato, Hokkaido University: “Indigenous Repatriation in Hokkaido and Research Ethics Issues”

10.00–10.20: Amanda Gomes, Hokkaido University: “Rebun Island – A Case for Uninherited or Disinherited Indigenous Heritage?”

10.20–10.35: Break

10.35–10.55: John Hennessey, Uppsala University: “Japanese Colonialism and Western Race Science, 1868–1941”

10.55–11.15: Hiroshi Maruyama, Centre for Environmental and Minority Policy Studies (CEMiPoS) & Leni Charbonneau, Centre for Environmental and Minority Policy Studies (CEMiPoS): “Implications of the New Ainu Policy – A Critical Assessment of the Policy within a Human Rights Framework with Special Reference to the Ainu Repatriation Movement”

11.15–12.00: Questions and discussion

Contact:

Carl-Gösta Ojala, Department of Archaeology and Ancient History, carl-gosta.ojala@arkeologi.uu.se